

Some Impersonators Are Easy to Spot.

Others Are Not.

Beware of Criminals Pretending to Be Utility Workers.

Pretending to be a trusted utility worker is a trick some criminals use to gain access to your home. Other than rare emergencies, real utility workers seldom need to get inside. When they do, the utility company makes an appointment in advance. Of course, before letting any worker into your home, you should always ask for company-issued photo ID.

If you suspect someone may be a utility imposter, call 911.

